

Study Abroad in Business

For all Business Majors

Business is global, and Kelley provides you with opportunities to explore unique cultures and learn about business practices in other countries. As a result, you'll broaden your perspective of the global marketplace and make connections, friendships, and memories that will last a lifetime.

Financial Planning

- The cost of studying abroad is generally similar to the that of IUPUI tuition.
- Most financial aid can be applied to the cost of IUPUI and IU-sponsored programs.
- Many scholarship opportunities are available through IUPUI, external organizations, and the Kelley School of Business Indianapolis.

Academic Planning

How does study abroad fit into my plan of study?

- Business students have the ability to build in a semester or short-term program (e.g., spring break) that fits within the four year plan of study. Meeting with an advisor is highly suggested.
- If no Kelley Indianapolis or Bloomington programs fit within your plan of study, contact a Kelley advisor to seek out non-business programs that will enhance your Kelley degree.

What courses will I take while abroad?

- There are a number of business-related programs that offer courses that fit within your business degree plan. These programs offer courses that fit within your general education requirements.
- It might be possible to take Business major courses abroad, but students must meet with a Kelley advisor to plan and determine what program offers the appropriate courses for their major and degree requirements. Planning is essential.

Can I do an internship while abroad?

Many of the Kelley study abroad programs offer for-credit internships as either required or elective component for the program. The internship experience varies depending on program location and not every program requires students to know the native language. For specific information on the study abroad internship programs please contact ksbabroad@iu.edu.

Program Options

Business Programs

France: Strasbourg

Business in Europe

Coordinated by the University of Strasbourg, this summer program consists of two courses: European Integration and Business in Europe completed over four weeks in the summer. This program also includes visits to international companies and international institutions.

- Completes international dimension and three credits of 200-level general education

United Kingdom: London

International Business in London

An introductory program (spring break) designed to broaden students' understanding of business in the global marketplace by immersing them in a multicultural environment including visits to leading global companies.

- Completes three credits of international dimension

Spain: Barcelona and Madrid

The Business of Sport

This spring break program is designed to broaden students' understanding of cultural similarities and differences by combining their skill set of business knowledge with their interest in athletics. Students will be exposed to a culture that values different types of sport than what Americans are used to and will see a passion and sport-centric attitude that is much more evident than in the United States.

- Completes three credits of international dimension

Business Semester Programs

Through our semester programs, you can spend 16 weeks immersed in another culture. See yourself as a business person in a global context, develop your communication and team-building skills, and earn business credit toward your Kelley degree at the same time.
