Fueled by a competitive admissions process, the Kelley School of Business Evening MBA Program attracts the most experienced and talented business professionals in central Indiana. Our goal is to assemble a group of students each semester who will contribute as much to the learning environment as they will take from it.

The cohort includes up to 64 professionals from an array of industries and backgrounds who serve as peer mentors throughout the program. The cohort concept significantly enhances the learning experience and provides collaborative advantages unmatched by other graduate business programs.

A Bridge between Theory and Practice

Engaging students at nearly every turn, the cohort contributes extensively to Kelley’s focus on active learning. Stated simply, students work with and learn from the talented peers in their classes. The benefits of this interaction are both meaningful and far-reaching.

- Faculty members build upon students’ working knowledge to form an important bridge between business theory and practice.

- The cohort structure promotes a valuable, challenging classroom experience—one that encourages students to think critically and creatively about issues and to devise appropriate solutions.

- Students within the cohort come from diverse backgrounds and professional environments, enriching classroom discussion and the study of case examples with varied perspectives and points of view.

- Kelley Evening MBA students develop stronger networking relationships because of the cohort structure.

- The value of the cohort extends far beyond graduation. Relationships with peers in the cohort endure, providing an important, unparalleled asset to students throughout their careers.
